*The spinning wheel begins its motion,
grasping the individual threads of past and present.
Gradually, these threads are joined, twisted, and intertwined to form the strong web of our Hollins community.*

We are ever conscious of the past.

Yet, across the time-worn pillars are stretched the vibrant threads of the living present.

These threads unravel and diverge, pursuing the varied pathways of our existence: up to the top of Tinker, down the aisle of the chapel, between the rows of library books,

*across the quad, through the halls of the dorm, up Senior Hill.
All becomes confused and tangled in our minds.*

Yet the spinning continues!

Time and tempo increase, and suddenly wandering threads re-converge to form an emergent pattern.

We are both the spinner and the thread.

Seizing the lines, we too are caught up in the furious spinning of a new entity. Gradually from the blurred motion of community appears the unique, the personal, the individual.

A burning search for personal identity continues to spring from the sparks of the flying wheel. It becomes our task to select the threads of individuality, so to discover our real selves. At last these fibers find their way to the loom where skillfully they are woven into our living fabric.

Dedication

As we must spin and weave the threads of existence into the fabric of life, so must our hands and minds be guided in this vital task. With sincerest admiration and gratitude for the guidance which you have willingly given to us and to those before us, we dedicate the 1963 SPINSTER to you,

MARY PHLEGAR SMITH

Faculty and Administration . . .

standing before us, they point the way toward greater knowledge, instilling in us the desire to learn and to think.

We know them as scholars and as friends; we respect and admire them. By their concern we are guided in the spinning of our mind's threads; through their teaching we shall weave the fulfilled potential into our existence.

Follies 1963

Classes . . . plunged into an existence of spinning and weaving, we look always before us, searching for the threads that will complete the pattern and make us whole. We enter with an enthusiastic freshness, an eagerness to learn and to excel.

While in our four years we are led by the patient guidance that only experience can offer. We give of ourselves; we gain from others. Finally, with a matured vigor and secure in the fabric we have created and have become, we pass through the gates of past and present to step into our future.

The Hollins Girl . . .

aware of her humanness, she grasps the heritage of the past and weaves it into the fabric of today. She is simplicity, yet complexity; individuality, yet community. Absorbing the product of her heirs, she weaves of herself a pattern for her successors. The Hollins Girl is a myriad of knowledge, of interest, of aspiration. She is many things . . . She is you!

Reflections . . . mirrored discretely within through honors achieved, shining lucidly without through printed thoughts, the threads of responsibility are solidly enmeshed in our being. Oblivious to the passage of time, we, like the spinning wheel, move constantly onward, bequeathing our publications and our ideals to the heritage that is Hollins'.

Traditions . . .

woven into the spirit of Hollins, they lend the sacred air of the past to the vibrant essence of the present. They are tightly spun throughout our existence, becoming more meaningful through time. We must pass out through the gates with only the remembrance of their meaning for us, for within, the traditions must live on.

"That by much laughing thou maist know there is a fool, not that the laughers are fools, but that among them is some fool at whom wise men laugh."

(John Donne)

Hundreth Night Party brings with it the advent of graduation and the betrayal of roommate's suppressed desires. Loud music and laughter reverberate from Botetourt as the grand old seniors begin their final 100 days at Hollins.

Tinker Day

"It'll never come on Monday!"—but it did! And with the sound of the bell and the appearance of Miss Chevroaux in her sweater, classes were forgotten in the mad whirl of a special day. We were off, winding our way across the meadows and up the trail to our Tinker-top Zeus—the Coke man!

Filling the air with singing and laughter, and our stomachs with fried chicken and Tinker Day cake, we transformed a dull October day into one never to be forgotten. Suddenly it ended and we were plummeting back down to the campus, tired but well-assured that it had been the best Tinker Day ever.

Founder's Day

The one hundred and forty-third birthday of Charles Lewis Cocke was celebrated on February 21, 1963, with a Festival of Contemporary Arts. Sponsored by the Division of Fine Arts, a three day program featured a play, various music recitals, and a dance concert.

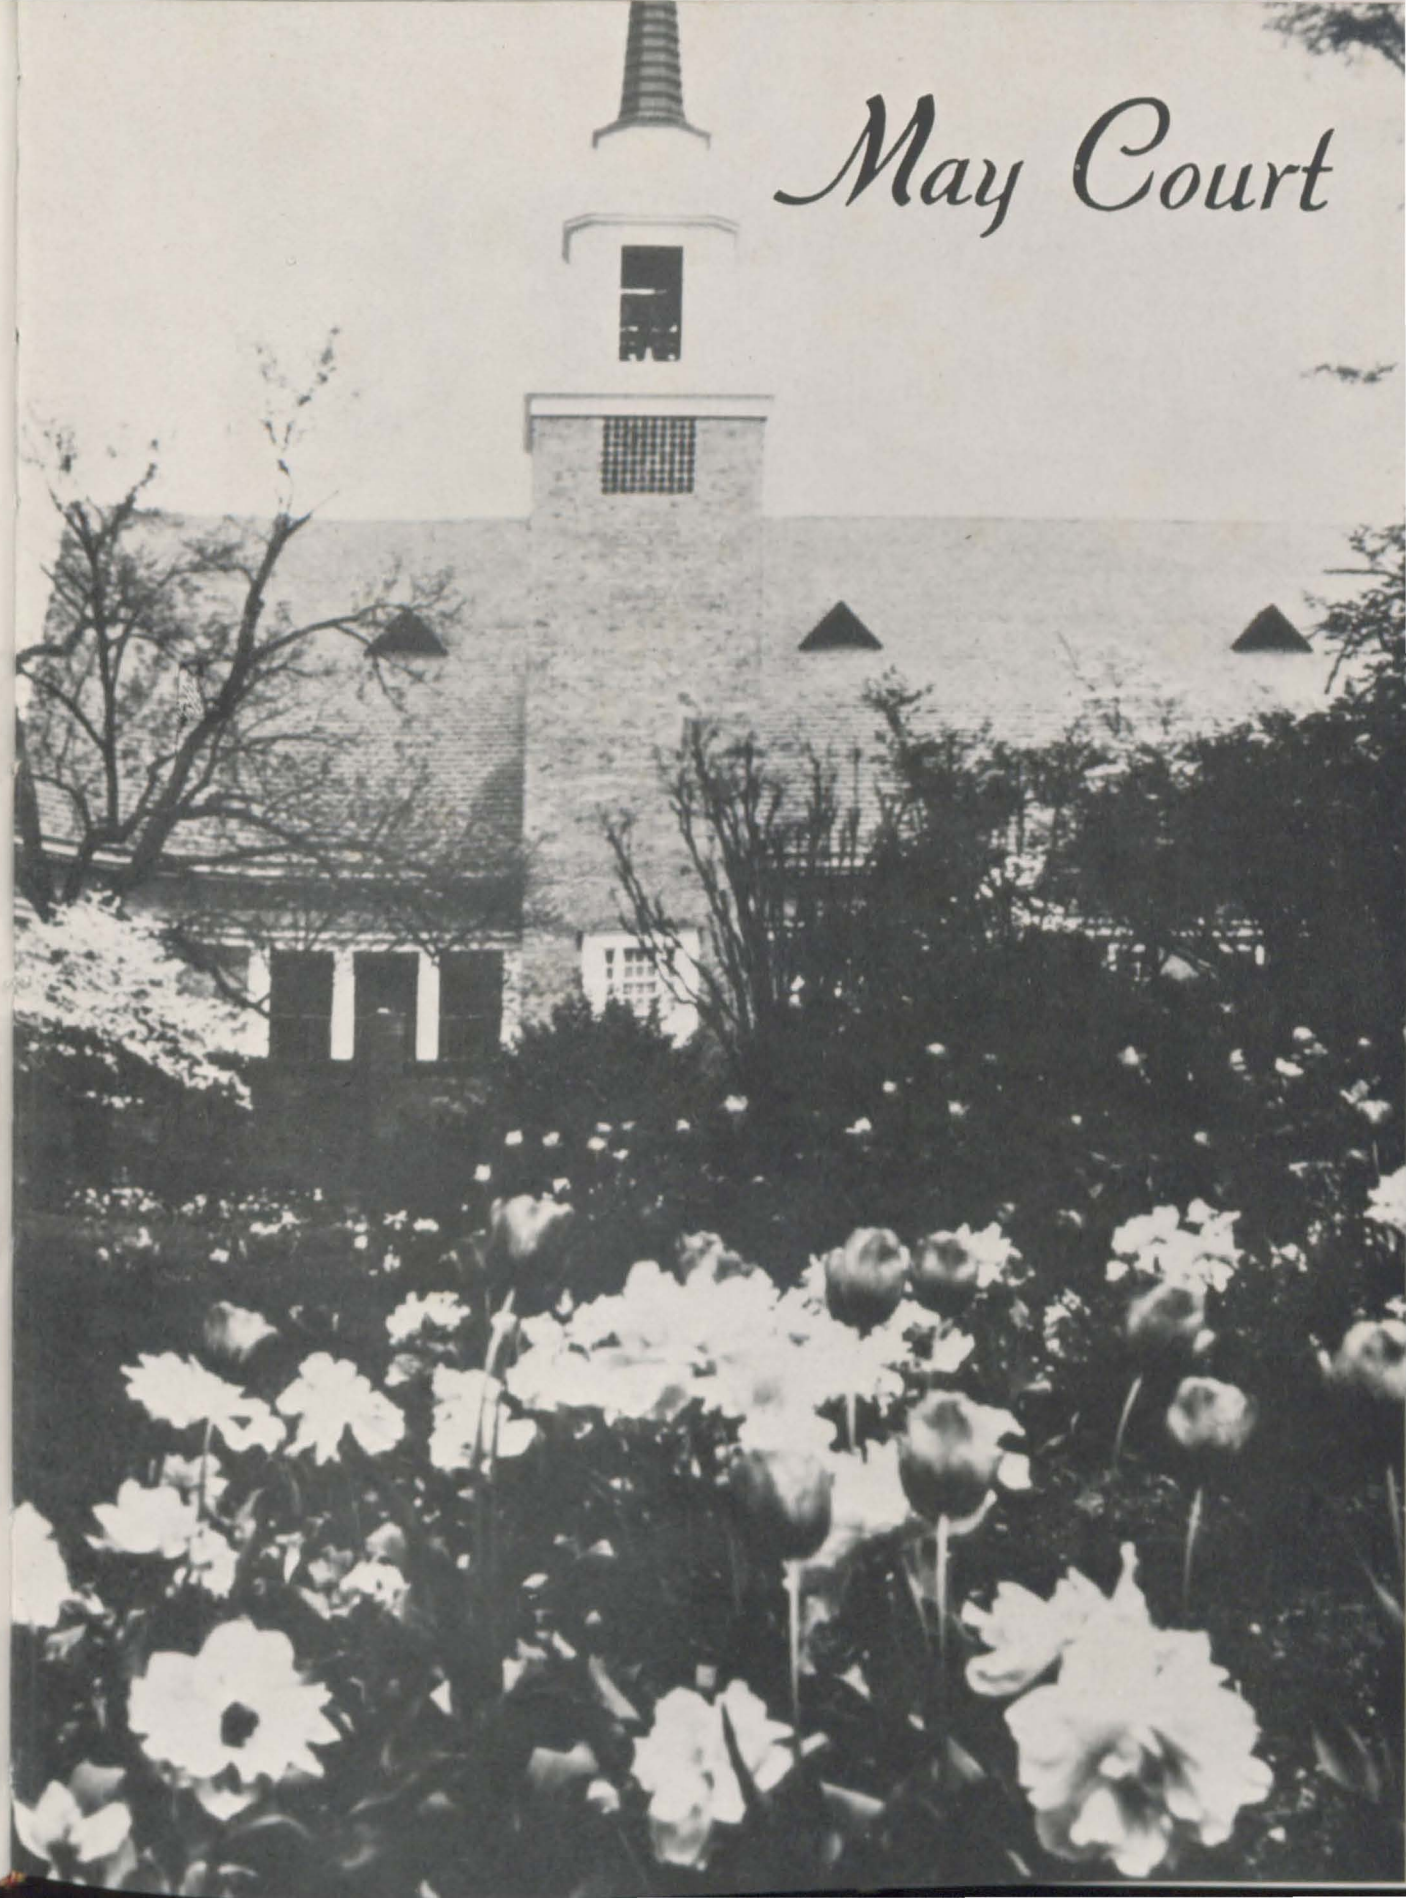

Dr. John A. Logan, Jr. and Founder's Day speaker, Mr. Philip R. Adams.

The seniors lay the traditional wreath upon the grave of the founder, Charles Lewis Cocke.
